The Good Part

THE GOOD PART

"Mary has chosen what is better, and no one will take it away from her."

Jesus (Luke, 10:42)

Do not forget the positive part that resides in all creatures and things.

The fire destroys, but it transports with itself the purifying element.

The stone is contusing but it consolidates security.

A windstorm whips ruthlessly; however, it helps in renewal.

A torrent is a filth; still, it usually conducts the indispensable fertilizer to the successful sowing.

So, there are also creatures that despite being negative in some sectors of the human struggle, prove to be extremely valuable in other fields.

Unilateral appreciation is always ruinous.

Complete imperfection, as much as full perfection, does not exist in the plan in which we evolve.

The criminal, accused by everyone, can be tomorrow the health care worker who brings you the glass of water.

The companion, in whom you have discovered deep darkness, might be later the sublimated brother who invites you to a good example.

A storm of the hour, as we are living at this moment, is, often, the source of well-being that we are going to live.

Let us search for the best side of the situations, events, and people.

"Mary has chosen what is better, and no one will take it away from her", told us the Lord.

Let us assimilate the essence of the divine lesson.

Those who seek the positive part, and with it remain, gather in the field of life, the spiritual treasure that anyone will never steal from them.
